

A Breakthrough in Translation Research

The Faculty of Foundation Studies sets its gear towards intensive research as one of its lecturers, Mr. Peyman Nouraey, recently embarked on a corroborative research entitled “The Map of Translation Studies in Modern Iran: An Empirical Investigation.” This study is published in Asia Pacific Translation and Intercultural Studies, and it points out some significant theoretical aspects in the field of Translation Studies (TS). It also makes comparisons with TS orientations of Asian countries such as Iran, China and Taiwan. In addition, research trends in TS and tendencies of these countries are compared with those in Europe and America. Moreover, several personal communications were made with a number of famous Translation Studies scholars and theorists around the world. The paper is co-authored by Dr. Amin Karimnia. It is published by Routledge in the UK. Click here to access this article.

Publisher: Routledge
Informa Ltd Registered in England and Wales Registered Number: 1072954 Registered office: 5 Howick Place, London, SW1P 1WG

Asia Pacific Translation and Intercultural Studies

Publication details, including instructions for authors and subscription information:

<http://www.tandfonline.com/loi/rtis20>

The map of translation studies in modern Iran: an empirical investigation

Peyman Nouraey^a & Amin Karimnia^b

^a Faculty of Foundation Studies, Gulf College, Muscat, Oman

^b Department of English, Fasa Branch, Islamic Azad University, Iran

Published online: 25 Jul 2015.

Click for updates

To cite this article: Peyman Nouraey & Amin Karimnia (2015): The map of translation studies in modern Iran: an empirical investigation, Asia Pacific Translation and Intercultural Studies, DOI: 10.1080/23306343.2015.1059009

To link to this article: <http://dx.doi.org/10.1080/23306343.2015.1059009>

Earlier in February 2015, Mr. Nouraey made a stride in the Translation Studies field. His paper entitled “On Trend-Restricted Theoretical Translation Studies: A Missing Link in Holmes’ Map” made a quantum leap in research and was published by the Journal of Language, Linguistics and Literature under the authority of American Institute of Science. The study proposes a nascent look at theoretical Translation Studies by arguing the existence of a missing link in Holmes’ map of TS. To access this article, click here.

Mr. Peyman Nouraey holds an M.A in Translation Studies obtained from the Islamic Azad University, Iran. He has published papers in several international journals and has given presentations in both national and international conferences. His research interests include translation and intercultural studies, translation teaching, translation quality assessment and TEFL.

The screenshot shows the website for the Journal of Language, Linguistics and Literature. The top navigation bar includes links for Favorites, Set Home, Contact Us, Service Center, Help Center, Register, and Login. The main header features the Public Science Framework logo and a banner for AIS (American Institute of Science) with the text: "AIS is the gateway to scientific research and application service, which is designed for research scholars. Public Science Framework is owned by AIS." Below this is a secondary navigation bar with Home, About Us, Public Projects, Journals, News, and Join Us. A large blue banner reads "Make Your Contribution to the Journal" with a "Submit Your Paper Now" button. A secondary navigation bar contains links for About This Journal, Open Access, Author Information, Our Partners, Payment Information, Submit a Manuscript, and All Issues. The breadcrumb trail indicates the user is at Home > Journals > Paper Information. The article information section displays the journal title, volume and issue information (Vol. 1, No. 1, February 2015, Pub. Date: January 28, 2015), the article title "On Trend-Restricted Theoretical Translation Studies: A Missing Link in Holmes' Map", a "Download PDF (507K)" button, and statistics: Pages: 1-6, Views: 69, Downloads: 32. The authors section lists two authors: [01] Peyman Nouraey, Faculty of Foundation Studies, Gulf College, Muscat, Oman; and [02] Amin Karimnia, Department of English Language, Fasa Branch, Islamic Azad University, Fasa, Iran.